Nael Al-Kabariti: Establishing Strategic Economic Relations between Jordan and Syria

The President of the Jordan Chamber of Commerce, Nael Kabariti, discussed with the Syrian Minister of Internal Trade and Consumer Protection, Dr. Amr Salem, ways to develop economic cooperation and trade exchange relations between the two brotherly countries. During the meeting, which was held at the headquarters of the Syrian Ministry of Internal Trade and Consumer Protection in the capital, Damascus, the two sides discussed the importance of moving towards establishing commercial partnerships to provide various goods and services in the two countries’ markets at competitive prices and high quality.

Kabariti stressed the keenness of the Jordanian commercial and service sector to establish strategic relations and build real partnerships with Syria to achieve common interests. He stressed the need to focus on the sectors of information technology, renewable energy, medical tourism, transit and the use of the port of Aqaba to transport goods to the Syrian market. Pointing to the importance of returning the joint Syrian-Jordanian free zone to work, and facilitating the transit of trucks in both directions, calling for building a partnership regarding tourism promotion and benefiting from the extensive Jordanian expertise in this field.

For his part, Minister Salem stressed the necessity of overcoming the difficulties and obstacles that hinder the means of cooperation between the Jordanian and Syrian sides and providing facilities that develop joint economic work and advance it to advanced stages. He pointed out the importance of cooperation in the communications and information technology sector and benefiting from Jordanian experiences in this field, especially in light of Syria’s trend towards “digitization” and electronic billing.

Egypt Targets 5.5 percent Growth in the 2022-2023 Budget

Egyptian Finance Minister Mohamed Maait revealed that the draft budget for the fiscal year 2022-2023 targets a growth rate of 5.7 percent of GDP, and gradually rises to 6 percent in 2024-2025.

Minister Maait pointed out that "the project aims to achieve a primary surplus of 2 percent at the average level, and reduce the total deficit to 6.1 percent in the 2022-2023 fiscal year, to decline to 5.1 percent in 2024-2025. It also aims to bring the debt-to-GDP ratio to less than 90% in the 2022-2023 fiscal year, and to 82.5% by June 2025, and to reduce the debt service ratio in relation to total budget expenditures to less than 30%, compared with 31.5% during the fiscal year 2021-2022. In addition to extending the life of the debt to approach 5 years in the medium term instead of 3.4 years currently, through the expansion of the issuance of various medium and long-term government bonds, and targeting new instruments such as sukuk, sustainable development bonds, and green bonds, which contribute to expanding the investor base and attract additional liquidity to the government stock market, in a way that helps reduce the cost of debt.
