The World Investment Report revealed that foreign direct investment has recovered to pre-Coronavirus levels, achieving an increase of 64 percent compared to 2020, bringing its inflows to $1.6 trillion in 2021. Driven by momentum from M&A activity and rapid growth in international project finance, due to loose funding and major infrastructure stimulus packages.

The report showed that while all regions benefited from the recovery, three-quarters of the growth was concentrated in advanced economies, where foreign investment inflows rose by 134 percent, and multinational companies achieved record profits. The top 10 receiving FDI economies in 2021 were the United States, China, Hong Kong, Singapore, Canada, Brazil, India, South Africa, Russia and Mexico.

Flows to developing economies rose 30 percent to $837 billion, the highest level ever recorded, due to strength in Asia, partial recovery in Latin America and the Caribbean, and recovery in Africa.

International Monetary Fund cuts its Forecast for Global Economic Growth

The International Monetary Fund plans to cut its global growth forecast for this year due to a combination of factors including the war in Ukraine, rising inflation and a slowdown in the Chinese economy.

"We can reasonably expect that the growth forecast for 2022 will be lowered compared to what we forecast in April," said IMF spokesman Gerry Rice. The International Monetary Fund previously lowered its global growth forecast to 3.6 percent.

He added, "The war in Ukraine continues... Commodity prices are still very volatile and energy prices, especially food prices, are very high. The Chinese economy has slowed down... It seems more dangerous than expected."

He pointed to the continued acceleration of inflation, "especially in a number of advanced economies, which leads to tightening of monetary policy." Jerry Rice considered that what is happening in the end is the "proliferation of crises" that affect growth.

For its part, the World Bank announced that it is now betting on the growth of global gross domestic product by 2.9 percent, compared to 4.1 percent in January (كانون الثاني). The World Bank highlighted the risks of stagflation, "with a prolonged period of weak growth and high inflation."
