Saudi Arabia’s GDP Growth of 8.8 percent

Data from the Saudi General Authority for Statistics showed that Saudi Arabia’s real gross domestic product grew by 8.8 percent in the third quarter of 2022, compared to the same period of 2021. The authority indicated that the increase in the gross domestic product was driven by the increase achieved by oil activities by 14.2 percent, and non-oil activities by 6 percent.

The gross domestic product in Saudi Arabia at current prices amounted to 1.036 billion riyals in the third quarter. Government activities recorded a growth of 2.5 percent year-on-year in the third quarter ending in September 2022. The seasonally adjusted real gross domestic product grew by 2.1 percent in the previous second quarter.

Preliminary estimates showed that the annual real gross domestic product grew by 8.6 percent in the third quarter. The Saudi Ministry of Finance expected the Saudi economy to grow by 3.1 percent in 2023, supported by oil activities, with expectations for the Saudi economy to grow by 5.7 percent in 2024 and 4.5 percent in 2025. The positive expectations of the Saudi economy for the year 2023 come as an extension of the improvement in the positive actual performance during the year 2022.

A Leap in Passenger Traffic through the Airports of the Sultanate of Oman

The Sultanate of Oman recorded a jump in passenger traffic through its airports in the first nine months of this year, in a shift that will help generate more revenues from the travel and tourism sectors.

The figures of the Government Statistics Center showed that the number of international and domestic flights arriving and departing through various airports in the country increased from the beginning of January to the end of last September, to more than 55.8 thousand flights, compared to about 26.6 thousand flights on an annual basis. The number of passengers increased significantly by 168 percent, as the total number of arriving and transit passengers at Muscat International Airports, Salalah, Sohar and Duqm reached about 6.96 million passengers by the end of September. The number of departures through Oman’s airports also increased during the same period by 120 percent compared to the same period last year.

The statistics revealed an increase in the number of international and domestic flights arriving and departing through Muscat International Airport by 113.6 percent, to reach about 47.9 thousand flights in nine months, carrying nearly six million passengers, compared to 2.37 million passengers a year ago.
